DHS Expands Approved AIDS Drugs

The Department of Health Services, AIDS Drug Program (ADP) has announced the expansion of their list to include 11 new drugs. In addition to the two drugs currently being provided by the program (AZT and aerosolized pentamidine), ADP now includes the following new drugs, effective November 12, 1991:

- ddI
- Dapsone
- sulfadiazine
- clindamycin
- ganciclovir
- pyrimethamine
- nystatin
- trimethoprim/sulfamethoxazole (TMP/SMZ)

Also added, effective April 1, 1992, are:

- ketoconazole
- fluconazole
- clotrimazole

The drugs were added to the ADP as a result of the continuing need and demand for a wider spectrum of AIDS drugs to treat the varied and multiple opportunistic infections associated with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) disease. The Office of AIDS was further encouraged to expand ADP as a result of a meeting held April 17, 1991 between their staff and a group of clinical physicians who actively provide medical care to persons with HIV disease and AIDS. It was the consensus of the physicians that other drugs should be provided by ADP which were as or more effective, and in some cases, less costly than the two drugs being provided at that time.

Other recommendations were that algorithms and dosages for each of the drugs be developed and distributed to prescribing physicians, major AIDS service providers, participating local health jurisdictions, and other identified entities. These algorithms and recommended dosages can be obtained from:

President's Column

by Fredrick Milkie, M.D.

The Board began the new year by discussing a number of major issues in which each division is involved, including a number of policy issues that required the attention of the entire Board.

As you may know, the Board has been developing regulations for the implementation of SB 2036, a law that will regulate the use of specialty board titles in advertising. The law will require, effective January 1, 1993, that boards cited in physician advertising be either ABMS approved or "equivalent." It has been the Board's enviable job to define "equivalent." Discussions held to date have been, to say the least, lively. (I would like to remind those that do not like the proposed regulations that the Board did not seek this responsibility, it was thrust upon us.) The draft regulations were not adopted at the January meeting, but, after some changes, were subsequently adopted at the April meeting of the Division of Medical Quality. If no new substantive issues are raised during the statutory comment period, they will be submitted to the Department of Consumer Affairs and the Office of Administrative Law for review and approval.

There was a lengthy discussion concerning the public's right or need to know complaint information about physicians under investigation and, conversely, physicians' right or need to know about complaints and investigations pending against them. The discussion was scheduled for a half hour and was cut short after over an hour and a half! The Board will be discussing this matter further, and I look forward to resolving this matter in the interest of public protection and fairness.

Another issue examined was the study of significant surgeries performed in unregulated outpatient settings. Under Section 2004(e) of the Medical Practices Act, the Board has the authority to hold hearings to determine medical quality practice issues. Although the vast majority of surgeries performed in outpatient settings result in no problems, our enforcement personnel are seeing a disturbing number of cases that involve patient harm or endangerment that come from surgeries performed in unregulated settings. The Board has appointed a committee to develop recommendations, which will include the conducting of public hearings on the subject. As a practicing ophthalmologist who performs outpatient surgery, I am personally interested in what may result from such a study.

The subject of mandatory HIV testing of health care professionals was also discussed. The Department of Health Services' Office of AIDS sent a representative to make a presentation to the Board about their development of an HIV/Health Care Worker policy, which they are required to draft by a recently enacted law. To date, they are still in development and will make no recommendations until the policy has been approved by all of the powers that be. As the Board is in the Executive Branch of Government, as is the Health Department, we await their instructions. In the meantime, we will treat AIDS in the same manner we treat serious communicable diseases such as Hepatitis. We will discipline any physician who endangers patients by not following standards of infection control.

So much for the Board meeting. The Board is also facing a number of additional controversial issues this year that will affect consumers and organized medicine.

Those old timers should be reminded, and those physicians too young to remember should be informed that once upon a time there were no limits on punitive damages awarded in malpractice suits resulting in astronomical rates for malpractice insurance in California. Since MICRA (Medical Insurance Compensation Reform Act), punitive damage awards have been limited and malpractice insurance rates have been manageable. There has been peace between organized medicine, insurers and the Trial Lawyers Association. This peace is due to a cease-fire agreement that expires in 1992.

In addition to the awards cap, MICRA created the Medical Board to replace the Medical Examiners to enforce physician discipline. The Medical Examiners consisted of 10 physicians and one non-physician and the new Board was made-up of 12 physicians and 7 non-physicians. For those who think that physician licensing fees are not well spent on enforcement, may I remind them that the cost of the alternative could prove to be significantly more expensive.

Those in search of the 20-second-sound-byte will have no trouble finding a forum. Medical issues are popular entertainment in the media. The most prominent myths being promulgated are that the Board is only made up of physicians who protect the self-interest of the profession and our disciplinary figures are abysmal.

In case you're asked, the Medical Board is not all doctors (as stated previously there are 7 non-physician members on the Board), we took action against over 500 physicians last year, 90 of whom lost their licenses to practice entirely, and another 78 of our investigations were referred to local prosecutors for criminal filings. There are another 900 plus cases pending at the Attorney General's Office awaiting adjudication, and; yes, the system is slow, but most of the delays are out of the Board's control and are caused by the legal system of due process. If people have a problem with that, I'm afraid they have more of a problem with the U.S. Constitution than with the Medical Board.

I look forward to a challenging year as President.

The Effects on licensure from criminal pleadings

by Foone Louie

Q. Under plea bargaining, some physicians plead guilty to criminal charges without knowing about the potential fall-out that can result from a criminal conviction. For example, is a conviction a cause for revocation or suspension of a physician's license?

A. Yes. The conviction of any offense substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of a physician and surgeon constitutes unprofessional conduct and a basis for license discipline under the Medical Practice Act. (Business and Professions Code, Section 2236)

Q. What constitutes criminal conviction under B&P 2236?

- A.
- 1) A verdict of guilty, after trial.
 - 2) A plea of guilty.
 - 3) A plea of nolo contendere (no contest)

Q. Does it matter whether a felony or a misdemeanor is involved?

A. No. The test is whether the offense is substantially related to the qualifications of a physician. Unrelated offenses are generally those that do not involve moral turpitude, dishonesty, lack of integrity, or drugs. For example, a conviction for failing to file an income tax return was held not to be a related offense. Whereas a conviction for income tax fraud was held to be a related offense (Windham vs BMQA (1980) 163 Cal Repr 566). The first involved a violation of a mechanical filing required by a statute. The latter involved dishonesty - putting your hands in Uncle Sam's pocket.

Q. Any other consequences following a conviction?

A. A convicted physician can be excluded from Medicare or Medi-Cal. (42 USC 1320a-7) Again, it depends on the offense. The by-laws of each hospital will determine separately whether a conviction affects staff membership.

For physicians who are interested in more of the legal aspects of practicing medicine, I would recommend the 1992 California Physician's Legal Handbook published by the California Medical Association's Legal Division. This 900+ page handbook is a comprehensive resource of information on laws and regulations that are applicable to the everyday practice of medicine. To get more information or to order the handbook call Sutter Publications at 415-882-5175. Cost is $85 for CMA members and $185 for non-members.

Address of Record.....

Is your "Address of Record" your home address?

Recently, our office received a call from a psychiatrist who was understandably upset that a former hostile and unstable patient showed-up at her home. The patient had been given the doctor's home address by the Medical Board's license verification unit.

Physician's "address of record" is public record and must be disclosed if requested. It is for this reason that many physicians choose to list their office address or a P.O. Box.

How do you know what is your address of record? Check your wallet certificate - the address on the certificate is your address of record. If you would like to change your address, please write us:

Helping the Chemically Dependent Physician

by Chet Pelton

Probably every physician in California knows a colleague that has abused some kind of chemical. Substance abuse affects all walks of life, and physicians are no exception. If we are to believe the statistics, we can assume more than ten percent of our physician population have or will have a problem with drugs (which includes alcohol) at some point in their lifetime.

We at the Board's Diversion Program see the consequences of the disease on the physician and patient. The community often chooses to overlook physicians who abuse drugs or alcohol for a number of reasons. The signs of abuse are generally not obvious and often the person who notices the problem does not report it out of fear of losing employment. Reporting the abuse may end friendships or doctor patient relationships. Sometimes, out of sympathy or friendship, people may want to make excuses for the physician's behavior.

Our Diversion Program receives a number of calls each week from colleagues and others concerned about physicians they believe to have substance abuse problems. They want to know what to do, how they can help, and basically, how to begin to approach the person to help them seek treatment.

The community can be a tremendous help in reaching-out to those physicians with problems. As the first signs of a problem are usually not as clear as being falling-down-drunk while on duty, (which is extremely rare) colleagues can help by being alert to symptoms and identifying the problem. Early detection, as in many diseases, may improve the chances of avoiding tragic consequences.

There are a number of symptoms which often are a foreshadowing of a more severe problem. A change in personality, poor or abusive attitudes, consistently showing-up late or missing appointments, depression or severe mood swings, and family problems are often symptoms that occur long before a physician's actual medical practice skills are affected. Frequently, it is a nurse or other support staff that notices the signs first. As it is probably very threatening to go to the physician directly, they will usually give the information to another physician or a person with some authority. It is often then another person's responsibility to deal with the situation.

Deal with it they must. The worst thing anyone can do is do nothing and hope the problem will go away by itself - it never does.

We recently received a call from a chief of surgery who had been told by an office nurse that she had found drugs and needles in the desk drawer of a surgeon. When he confronted the surgeon with the discovery, the man had a possible, but not very plausible explanation as to why the drugs were there. Understandably, the Chief was uncomfortable with calling the doctor a liar, and didn't know how to challenge him about the explanation without doing so.

Our discomfort in confrontation is natural, but it must be overcome. In order to move forward, whether it is to take disciplinary action against the physician's privileges or help the person get treatment, denial of the disease must not be accepted.

The Chief should not have accepted the surgeon's explanation unchallenged. He could have said "well then, you wouldn't mind taking a urine test," or maybe, "would you mind seeing a colleague of ours who specializes in substance abuse," or "I'd like for you to discuss this with the Hospital Well Being Committee." Just letting the situation stagnate did not serve the hospital, the physician, or future patients.

The Diversion Program can help those who need guidance in dealing with the chemically dependent physician. We have a number of physicians in recovery that will help in intervention and can lend their personal experiences to help bring greater understanding to the condition.

Each hospital must have a Well Being Committee to assist physicians who may have problems with chemical dependency or mental illness. The Committee is confidential and helps the physician to be rehabilitated.

Substance abuse is a problem that will only worsen over time. If left untreated, it can be fatal. The nature of the disease almost always results in long periods of denial and an aversion to seeking help and treatment. It is for that reason that physicians must help those affected acknowledge their conditions and be persistent in encouraging treatment. To let an affected physician continue to deteriorate is neither kind or appropriate.

Chet Pelton is the Manager of the Board's Diversion Program.

Medical Board Diversion Program

The Board's Diversion Program is a highly structured long-term monitoring program with a 74% success rate. It is a tough program that over 350 physicians have successfully completed since 1980.

A physician entering the Diversion Program is evaluated by a Diversion Evaluation Committee composed of 3 physicians and 2 public members, all experienced in chemical dependency. Physicians must sign an agreement based on a treatment plan tailored to their individual needs by the DEC, which has a number of conditions, and may include:

- Notification of the Well Being Committee in the Hospital where practicing of participation in the Diversion Program.
- Attending Diversion Program meetings.
- Attending Alcoholics Anonymous/Narcotics Anonymous meeting.
- Submitting to biological fluid testing on a random basis.
- If Board referred, agree that if unsuccessfully terminated by the program, all Diversion records will be turned-over to the Board's Enforcement Unit for administrative disciplinary action.
- Agree to stop practicing medicine if the Diversion Examining Committee (DEC) determines that the physician is found to be unfit to practice.

Those who enter the Diversion Program must be clean and sober for a minimum of two years before they may successfully terminate the program. This means that if a physician is clean for a year and then has a relapse, he starts all over again for another two years. Participants must also demonstrate a change of life-style that will support sobriety.

Those in the Diversion Program are closely monitored. They must submit periodic reports about their recovery progress, undergo outside evaluation, and must obtain approval from DEC before changing jobs.

Physicians may enter the program through a disciplinary order or may participate voluntarily before the Medical Board has any knowledge of patient endangerment or misconduct. Participation of physicians who enter the program voluntarily (over 50%) is treated confidentially.

The program accepts physicians who are alcoholics, drug addicts, and in rare instances, those who are mentally ill, and works closely with Well Being Committees in each hospital. Any licensed physician in California who has or feels he or she might have a substance abuse problem may apply to the Diversion Program for an evaluation. Those who are interested in information about the program should call (916) 924-2561 on weekdays.

Delinquent on Support Payments?

You may be unable to renew your license

Department of Consumer Affairs is working with the Department of Social Services, as well as other appropriate agencies to implement a new law that will prohibit the issuance or renewal of professional licenses to individuals delinquent in their court ordered support payments.

The law is intended to crack-down on individuals who have been more difficult to reach for collection of delinquent payments -- self-employed professionals. If the State is notified by a county district attorney that an individual is delinquent in his or her court ordered payments, no license will be issued or renewed.

The law will go into effect July 1, 1992. At present, legislation clean-up is being proposed that would provide for an issuance of a temporary 150 day license in order for arrangements to be made for payment.

Those who may be affected by the new law should contact the district attorney's office in the county where the support was ordered.

New Board Member Appointed

B. Camille Williams, M.D. is the newest appointment to the Medical Board by Governor Pete Wilson. Dr. Williams was appointed to the Board in November and will serve on the Division of Licensing.

Dr. Williams is a Cosmetic Surgeon in private practice in Orinda. She received her Bachelor of Science degree from Oregon State University, Masters of Science degree in consumer science from the University of California, Davis and her medical degree and general surgery training at the University of California at San Francisco. She completed an Otolaryngology Head and Neck Surgery residency at Kaiser, Oakland and received her cosmetic surgery training in Lausanne, Switzerland, through a fellowship with the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery.

After receiving her masters degree, and before entering medical school, Dr. Williams served as a nutritionist for low income pregnant women in the Maternal Infant Care Project at St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco.

Dr. Williams is board certified in Otolaryngology and a member of the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, American Medical Association, American Academy of Cosmetic Breast Surgery, American Academy of Cosmetic Surgery, and American Society of Liposuction. Along with numerous hospital and public service organizations, Dr. Williams is a member of the Foundation Board of San Francisco State University, and Board of Regents of John F. Kennedy University. She is also a Board member of the Orinda Chamber of Commerce.

The doctor's appointment replaces Governor George Deukmejian's appointment, Dr. Haig Mahdessian. The term expires in June, 1993.

Questionnaire to Focus on Supply and Distribution of Physicians

A revised physician survey questionnaire will be included in all applications for license renewals beginning early this year.

The data gathered will be used by several state, local and private agencies to study for longterm health care planning. The questions are designed to furnish the best information possible with the least intrusion. In general, the questions are aimed at helping to determine where doctors are needed, and in what specialties.

The information should be helpful to medical schools, counties and other public and private agencies, which may now suspect they have a shortage of physicians but have no quantifiable data. In addition, through this revised survey, the Medical Board may be the first agency to develop reliable statistics on the number and type of settings in which significant surgeries are being performed outside of hospitals.

Completion of the questionnaire is mandatory (Section 923 B&P) and the information collected is strictly confidential. No physician will be identified in any data released to the public or other governmental agencies.

For additional information about the questionnaire, please feel free to write:

Right to Choice - Right to Protection

by Cathy Stueckemann

How would you respond if a person with mental retardation came into your office and asked to be sterilized? How would you respond if the parents of a 19-year-old female with profound mental retardation asked you to sterilize their daughter?

If you didn't say something like, "Well in the first case I would be sure I got an informed, voluntary consent; and in the second case, I would recommend that they go to court to become limited conservator to give consent to sterilization," then you need to read on.

The law recognizes the right of persons with developmental disabilities who are capable of giving consent to sterilization to give that consent without the necessity of a court order. (Probate Code Section 1969) The right to exercise choice over procreation/family planning is a fundamental privacy interest that may not be denied to an individual solely on the basis of a disability. However, the law recognizes the fact that persons with developmental disabilities are capable of and do engage in sexual activity yet may not be able to make informed choices concerning their right to procreative choice, including the right to choose sterilization. Historically, the power to sterilize has oftentimes been abused. It is critical for you as a medical doctor to know that those individuals with developmental disabilities who are not capable themselves of giving an informed consent must have a court order specifically authorizing such a sterilization procedure before you may proceed. The law does not prohibit medical treatment or surgery that's required for other medical reasons and in which sterilization is unavoidable but is not the object of the treatment. (Probate Code Section 1968)

However, even conservators having exclusive authority under Probate Code Sections 2355 and 2357 must petition the court for the authority to give consent to a sterilization procedure as required by Probate Code Sections 1950-1969.

These Probate Code Sections create a procedure for the appointment of a limited conservator with authorization to consent only to the sterilization of a developmentally disabled adult who does not have the ability to consent to such a procedure. What does this mean to you? Without a court order, you may not legally sterilize an individual who is incapable of giving that kind of informed consent. So even though mom, dad and their son or daughter with a developmental disability have been your patients for years and the parents want their child sterilized, you have a legal obligation to obtain a voluntary informed consent from that son or daughter or obtain a copy of the court order specifically authorizing such a sterilization procedure.

If there's no voluntary, informed consent or no court order, then no sterilization procedure. For further information on this topic, please contact your local Medical Society or the Regional Center which serves persons with developmental disabilities in your area.

New Vaccine Pamphlets Required

by Loring Dales, M.D.

On April 15, 1992, the patient notification provision of the National Vaccine Injury Act became effective. It requires providers of specified vaccines (diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, measles, mumps, rubella and polio and all combinations of these vaccines; e.g., DTP, MMR) to first give their child and adult patients informational pamphlets, designed by the United States Department of Health and Human Services, to read. There are three of these "Vaccine Information Pamphlets" (one of each for diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis, measles-mumps-rubella, and polio vaccines) which describe the benefits and risks of the vaccines.

All physicians, clinics, and hospitals administering these vaccines to any patients must provide these patients with the corresponding pamphlets (or, alternatively, self-developed materials which meet all of the information requirements of the governing federal law and regulations) before every vaccine dose is given. This requirement applies to both the public and private medical sector and applies regardless of whether the vaccine used is purchased with public or private funds and regardless of whether the patient's medical care is paid with private or public funds. There is no legal requirement that private medical sector providers collect and retain the patient/parent-guardian signature record that appears at the end of the pamphlets, but most providers will want to do so. It is legally required that, for each patient immunized, providers record and retain the following information in the facility's permanent medical records:

- date vaccine administered
- vaccine manufacturer and lot number
- name, address and title of the person administering the vaccine.

In May, 1992, the California Department of Health Services, in cooperation with the Medical Board of California, mailed every physician with a California medical license who is located in this state a free set of "camera-ready" originals (English and Spanish) of these pamphlets. Translations into several different languages will be available in August, 1992. In the same mailing, physicians were told how and where to order additional free sets of "camera-ready" originals. The American Academy of Pediatrics offers the pamphlet for sale in bulk (in English Language only). For a price list and order form, write:

Why When How

to report communicable diseases

by George W. Rutherford, M.D.

Physicians who treat individuals or families rely on a complete and current clinical database to practice medicine adequately. County Health Officers, Disease Control Officers, the State Epidemiologist, and their departments rely on a sound database to plan, manage, and fund disease control in their community. They rely on you for this essential data. It is for this reason communicable disease reporting by physicians is required by law.¹

When cases of communicable diseases are promptly and accurately reported to local health departments, it gives them the needed data to:

- Initiate timely public health interventions. During last year's measles epidemic, some cases, which could have been prevented by prompt post exposure prophylaxis, occurred when physicians failed to notify their local health department of the index case. Health departments may need to institute mass prophylaxis rapidly in epidemics such as meningitis. Delays in reporting could be fatal.
- Detect outbreaks of disease. Reports made by Long Beach physicians resulted in the identification of jet gun injections as the source of an ongoing outbreak of hepatitis B.²
- Plan and monitor prevention programs and justify funding for local needs. Data furnished on Tuberculosis (TB) and AIDS each year are used in evaluating the effectiveness of TB and AIDS control programs. Furthermore, statistics reported help determine the amount of funding available in California for controlling these diseases. Measles and syphilis are other examples of diseases for which prevention programs and justification for funds use data from physicians' reports. Formulas to allocate funds for medical care and other direct patient services may depend on physician reporting. The stakes are even higher when a minimum quota of cases is required. In 1990, some metropolitan areas did not qualify for Federal Ryan White AIDS funding, because they could document the required 2,000 cases of AIDS -- more complete reporting by physicians could have led to more funding.

When should a physician report? You should notify the communicable disease unit of your local health department whenever you suspect an outbreak of disease or whenever your patient is diagnosed with a reportable communicable disease (see list).

Never assume that a case has been reported to the health department by someone else (e.g., laboratory personnel). Health departments would rather receive duplicate reports for a case than no report at all, and there are only a few diseases that laboratory personnel are required to report.

For each case, you should complete a Confidential Morbidity Report (CMR) card. On the CMR card, indicate the diagnosis as specifically as possible; for example, if a patient has a stool culture positive for Salmonella typhi, the diagnosis should be "typhoid fever" or "S. typhi infection," not "salmonellosis." The back of the CMR card needs to be filled out for hepatitis, tuberculosis, and sexually transmitted diseases.

Send the CMR card to the communicable disease control unit of your local health department, which will forward the information to the California Department of Health Services. For some diseases, health departments need information about the patient beyond that requested on the CMR card. Your local health department will contact you if necessary for any individual case.

Information about individual patients is kept strictly confidential as required by California law. If you are concerned that your health department might contact your patient, you may wish to discuss this concern with the Health Officer or designee. You may advise your patient that you are making a report, and that you are legally required to do so, and medically liable if you do not. Neither this advice, nor your patient's consent is required, and your concern for your patient's confidentiality does not exempt you from your reporting duty.

To obtain supplies of CMR cards, or copies of the California laws pertaining to disease reporting¹, physicians should contact their local health departments. To learn more about the reporting of communicable diseases in general, you can consult a 1989 article in the Journal of the American Medical Association.³ Thank you for participating in communicable disease control in California.

MEDICAL BOARD OF CALIFORNIA

1426 HOWE AVENUE
SACRAMENTO, CA 95825-3236

To all California licensed physicians from members of the Board:

As you probably already know, physicians are facing new increases in license renewal fees. Board members would like you to know that we share your concerns about rising government costs and are doing everything possible to contain the cost of administering the Medical Practices Act.

The immediate need for more funds stems from the rapid rise in demand for more legal support from the Office of the Attorney General. As the Board has increased its enforcement activities and is processing more investigations, more and more cases have been referred to the Attorney General for legal action. The Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Health Quality Enforcement Section, Al Korobkin, estimates that the section must have an additional 27 staff members to handle the added load.

We have been closely analyzing the Attorney General's data to assure that the need is not exaggerated. We are working together to determine the amount of funds required to pay for the number of staff reasonably needed to ensure the joint Medical Board / Attorney General system fulfills its mission to protect the public.

Over the past two years, the Board and its peer-review based disciplinary system have come under considerable fire in the media, and consequently, the Legislature. The State Auditor General recently completed a report which said the system was too slow. It found that the average time to fully process a case against a doctor, from complaint to discipline, was 2.8 years. Critics of the system have added this report to their arguments that California's system, based on physician peer expert review, should be junked. Some critics want a replacement system which would use prosecuting attorneys to handle all complaints, a small panel of judges to decide, with the Board playing only an advisory role.

We believe that the system is sound, but staffing must keep up with demand. If the present system is to be preserved, the process must improve. Consequently, the Medical Board has been working hard to tighten-up the investigation process. Last year the Board eliminated a backlog of 900 cases awaiting investigation, and is completing more disciplinary actions than ever before. As the Board becomes more efficient, however, a backlog crisis is being created at the Attorney General. At present, they have over 900 of our cases with over 400 awaiting legal review. Clearly this is unacceptable to the Board, and certainly unacceptable to the public.

We know of no other way to remedy this situation but to give the Attorney General the staff needed to perform the task in a timely manner. Physicians being disciplined usually have access to some of the best legal representation in the State. It is therefore necessary for the State's counsel to be fully staffed and able to meet the challenge.

As it stands now, it appears that fees must be raised from our current $450 biennial (2 year) fee to $480 in August, 1992, and to $550 in 1993. To put this in perspective, California's fees are not the highest. Even after the increases, on a two-year basis, we will be third in the nation (after Connecticut at $900 and Texas at $584). Podiatry Licensing Fees are $800 in California, and Attorney's Fees are almost $900.

We will continue to work hard to keep fees down to the minimum needed to do our job. We must however, act now to increase our revenue or otherwise physicians must be prepared to have the system replaced with another that probably will cost a great deal more.
